

A-Z Careers with Languages

A

Archaeologist

From ancient dig, to excavating stories, understanding local languages helps archaeologists unpeel layers of history.

B

Business Developer

Living and working in a multi-national world means that languages on your CV gives you an upper edge.

C

Carer

Being a carer brings you in close contact with a diverse range of people. Knowing languages expands your opportunities.

D

Doctor

Communicating effectively to reduce any barriers to care is crucial to improving health and overcoming diseases.

E

Editor

You can be an editor anywhere in the world, being able to write and translate in different languages opens many doors.

F

Footballer

From understanding other players on the pitch to building friendships in the dressing room, being multi-lingual can be a huge asset.

G

Government worker

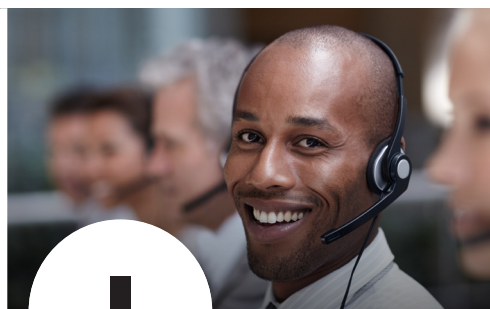

Translating conversations, focusing on international diplomacy, or offering support, knowing more than one language can be essential.

H

Hospitality

Speaking different languages can be a game changer in hospitality, allowing you to help guests from all over the world.

I

Interpreter

Facilitate communication in a range of settings, from police interviews to international meetings and conferences.

J

Journalist

Speaking multiple languages opens doors to international opportunities and enhances a journalist's ability to share powerful stories.

K

Kitchen supervisor

Kitchens are full of chefs, porters and other workers from all over the world. Knowledge of other cultures helps elevate menu choices too!

L

Lecturer

By speaking more than one language you can connect with more learners. You can teach abroad too!

M

Movie producer

Being 'on location' can be in any country. Being multilingual could empower you to travel and work with a wider range of actors.

N

Nanny

Nannying is a popular career that benefits from understanding diverse cultures, lifestyles and communities.

O

Occupational Therapist

Languages can be vital when supporting local, national and global communities.

P

Police Officer

You will be able to communicate with more people in your community if you can speak more than one language.

Q

Quantity surveyor

Whether you're sourcing materials from overseas or communicating with vendors, languages will help you better support your clients.

R

Recruitment consultant

Unlocking opportunities to connect with international candidates and businesses, languages will enhance your own CV.

S

Soldier

Multilingual soldiers are extremely useful in sensitive operations across the globe and can better connect with local communities.

T

Teacher

Languages open doors to being a teacher in the UK and abroad! You could find yourself teaching English if you're able to live elsewhere.

U

UX designer

UX (or user experience) designers find themselves consulting with international colleagues, clients and partners in a global marketplace.

V

Vlogger

An online career means it takes just a few clicks to go from local to global - knowing other languages can massively expand your reach.

W

Weather analyst

Working internationally in stations, interpreting data from satellites or supporting spacecrafts for launch, languages can enhance your career.

X

X ray operator

Clear communication is key in hospitals and surgeries, knowing different languages can be extremely helpful.

Y

Youth advocate

The more languages you can speak, the more young people you will be able to support.

Z

Zoologist

With more than one language under your belt, your animal adventures could take you anywhere!

Find out more:
go.pearson.com/MFLGCSE24
#morethanwords

