Practice it!

What are you going to do?

Play checkers. Ask. Answer.

Instructions: Make five markers and write your initials on them. Get into pairs. Choose one end of the board. Put your markers on the first row. Your partner asks "What are you going to do?" Move one marker sideways, forward or diagonally. Answer using the picture on the starting space and the picture on the landing space, e.g. "We're going to go on the roller coaster. Then we're going to get some caramel corn." Take turns asking, moving and answering. Then change roles. If your partner's marker is on a circle next to yours, you can jump over it to the next circle and take your partner's marker. Markers that cross to the other end of the board are safe. The person with the most markers at the end takes the first turn in the next game.
