Background

About PISA

The Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) is an international comparative study carried out by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). It assesses 15-year-olds' skills and knowledge in reading, mathematics and science – the 'core' domains – alongside an optional skills domain, which in the past has covered financial literacy, global competency, and collaborative problem solving, among others. The assessment is given to a proportional sample of students in each country, covering all types of institutions and backgrounds.

Students, parents, teachers, and schools also complete questionnaires to gather data about context, attitudes, motivations, and policies. This information is used to analyze and interpret the assessment results.

PISA is carried out every three years, allowing participating countries to track their progress towards key learning goals. Since its launch in 2000, PISA has involved more than 90 countries and 3 million students worldwide.

PISA Foreign Language Assessment framework

In 2025, a new core domain will be added to PISA for the first time: Foreign Language Assessment (FLA).

Initially measuring English as a Foreign Language, this new assessment will be repeated every six years (every second PISA). Over time, it may come to cover more languages.

According to the OECD (2021), the FLA aims to improve teaching by providing:

- international comparisons based on the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR)
- national diagnostics, showing strengths and weaknesses of mastery, and analysis of trends
- policy and practice lessons, identifying best practices in foreign language teaching in school settings

PISA FLA will measure three skills:

- reading comprehension
- listening comprehension
- spoken production

Writing skills will not be measured in 2025 but may be added in the future.

The assessment framework for the PISA FLA is built on two existing and widely recognised frameworks:

- the CEFR (2001)
- Weir's socio-cognitive model for test development and validation (2005)

The framework defines foreign language proficiency as 'the ability to use a foreign language to communicate effectively. It requires a combination of communicative language competences and general competences that allow the foreign language learner to perform communicative language activities (reception, production, interaction and mediation), which involve one or a combination of the following skills: reading, listening, speaking or writing. It also requires the activation of appropriate language strategies' (OECD, 2021, p.27).

The PISA FLA test

The PISA FLA will be a computer-based test.

The reading and listening components of the test will be semi-adaptive, with students assigned to a particular CEFR level based on their performance on an initial section, and given one of a number of test forms pitched at that level. Each item in the receptive-skill sections of the test will relate to one or more of the CEFR Can-Do statements (learning objectives).

The speaking section, by contrast, will not be adaptive, and the items will not be aligned to specific CEFR Can-Do statements. Instead, the scores will be determined by the characteristics of the output.

The test will score each of the three skills (reading, listening, and speaking) on a six-point scale aligned to the CEFR, from 'below A1' to 'C1 and above'.

About the GSE

Pearson developed the Global Scale of English (GSE) to provide instructors and learners with a more granular understanding of English language proficiency. It has been designed to build learners' confidence by revealing exactly where they are on their learning journey and setting personalised goals to help them progress.

The GSE is an ecosystem, comprising four main parts:

- GSE Scale: a scale from 10 to 90, with clear statements for what a learner can achieve in speaking, listening, reading, and writing at any point on the scale.
- GSE Learning Objectives: these describe what learners can do at each level of proficiency in speaking, listening, reading, and writing.
- Courseware: all of Pearson's English language learning courseware is developed using the GSE Learning Objectives, ensuring learners are studying at the right level.
- Assessment: institutions can develop their own assessment materials using the GSE Learning Objectives and Assessment Frameworks, or choose a Pearson's assessment that uses the GSE as its scoring scale.

The GSE is the result of many years of research with more than 6,000 teachers from over 50 countries. It serves as a standard against which English language courses and assessments worldwide can be benchmarked.

It has been psychometrically aligned to the CEFR (see De Jong, Mayor, & Hayes, 2016). The GSE complements and extends the CEFR by adding an extra layer of granularity to the CEFR levels and providing thousands of additional learning objectives.

Table 1: The relationship between the GSE Scale and CEFR

CEFR level	GSE Scale
Below A1	10–21
A1	22–29
A2	30–35
A2+ ('plus level')	36–42
B1	43–50
B1+ ('plus level')	51–58
B2	59–66
B2+ ('plus level')	67–75
C1	76–84
C2	85–90

This extra information helps learners understand where they are now and offers a step-by-step guide to where they want to go next. Using the GSE, teachers can match a student to course materials to suit their exact level and learning goals.

To address the specific needs of learners studying English for different purposes, GSE Learning Objectives have been developed for five different learner audiences:

- adult: adults studying on a general English course
- academic: adults studying academic English
- professional: adults studying English for the workplace
- young learner: English language learners aged 6–14
- pre-primary: English language learners aged 3–5

Alignment between the GSE and PISA FLA

Given that both GSE and the PISA FLA are based on the CEFR, our assumption is that there will be a strong correlation between them. This alignment study aimed to answer the following questions.

- How well does the GSE relate to the PISA FLA?
- How might the GSE be used by different PISA stakeholders?

There are various potential benefits of linking the GSE to PISA FLA. It will allow learners, teachers, and stakeholders to make meaningful comparisons between the two systems and understand their language requirements for learning, teaching, and assessment purposes.

Methodology

There are various forms of alignment that can be carried out in the area of language learning and assessment – for example:

- alignment between different content standards
- alignment of content standards to the performance standards of tests
- alignment between performance standards across tests

While various assessments use the GSE, the PISA FLA test has not yet been administered. Therefore, this alignment study focuses on aligning content standards – that is, alignment of the PISA FLA framework and the GSE Learning Objectives.

The PISA FLA framework includes an annex with tables which map the PISA assessment tasks to CEFR Can-Do statements, followed by illustrative sample tasks (see Table 2). This study used these tables to align the same tasks to the GSE Learning Objectives.

Table 2: PISA content used for the GSE alignment

Skill	Relevant tables in PISA FLA framework	Pages
Reading	Annex table 4.A.1: Mapping of reading tasks to CEFR level, cognitive process, CEFR can-do statements, and reading type Annex 4.B sample tasks: Reading	92–107
Listening	Annex table 4.C.1: Mapping of listening tasks to CEFR level, cognitive process, and CEFR can-do statements Annex 4.D sample tasks: Listening	108–116
Speaking	Annex 4.E: Mapping of speaking tasks to framework dimensions Annex 4.F sample tasks: Speaking	117–123

The alignment was carried out by a freelance consultant who is experienced and knowledgeable in aligning standards to the GSE. It was then reviewed by Pearson’s Director of Global Scale of English.

There is a standard methodology for aligning an institution’s curriculum to the GSE Learning Objectives (Stakenburg & Davila, 2019). This study used an adapted version of that methodology. GSE Learning Objectives were identified and assigned using the following three-step process.

Step 1: Match

- List all CEFR Can-Do statements referenced in the PISA FLA framework annex tables (see Table 2)
- Match each of these CEFR Can-Do statements to one or more relevant GSE Learning Objectives

At 15 years old, PISA test-takers are on the cusp between young learners (6–14) and adults (16+). Given this, the alignment uses GSE Learning Objectives from three of the GSE frameworks: adult, academic, and young learner. The closest matches to each Can-Do statement, in terms of wording and level, were selected from these GSE frameworks.

The GSE alignment follows the structure and content of the PISA FLA framework annex tables in terms of level. GSE alignment data should be thought of as cumulative, with each level building on what has gone before in terms of skills acquisition.

The tables in the PISA FLA framework annexes do not include the CEFR ‘plus’ levels at A2, B1 and B2. Where appropriate, we have included these ‘plus’ levels in this alignment exercise to show the level of stretch afforded in the task types when considering potential learning materials or publications.

Step 2: Supplement

- Add GSE Learning Objectives which could provide support or scaffolding for the CEFR Can-Do statements in the PISA FLA framework annex tables, or which are generally applicable to the CEFR aim and PISA task type

For example, consider a reading task.

- CEFR Can-Do statement: Can deduce the meaning of an unknown word for a concrete action or object, provided the surrounding text is very simple, and on a familiar everyday subject
- Supporting GSE Learning Objective: Can guess the meaning of a word from an accompanying picture

The CEFR Can-Do statement relates to text, but the GSE Learning Objective references visual support. In a task like this, the GSE Learning Objective could potentially be useful for practice activities that would lead to mastery of the CEFR Can-Do statement.

Step 3: Check

- Analyze and cross-reference the sample tasks included in the PISA FLA framework with the corresponding GSE Learning Objectives to make sure there are no gaps
- Flag which GSE Learning Objectives can apply directly to a sample task

Table 3 shows the outcome of the process, using an abridged sample. Rows A to D are taken from annex table 4.A.1: Mapping of reading tasks to CEFR level, cognitive process, CEFR can-do statements, and reading type (OECD, 2021, pp. 93–97). Row E shows the corresponding GSE Learning Objectives and their values on the GSE Scale. For the unabridged alignment, see Appendix 1–3.

Findings

Tables 4–6 summarize the alignment for reading, listening, and speaking, showing the extent of GSE coverage. The average GSE level corresponds well to the CEFR level. There are no gaps in the alignment; on the contrary, the GSE provides extensive additional coverage of each of the CEFR descriptors and task types used in the PISA FLA.

Usage of GSE with PISA

Given the close alignment between the PISA FLA and the GSE, we anticipate that the GSE could be used:

- by teachers, authors, and item writers to create their own materials as part of preparing for PISA
- by Ministries of Education, institutions, and teachers to select Pearson courseware and/or assessments that can support students preparing for PISA
- by anyone using the 2025 PISA FLA assessment results, to unpack in more detail what students can do at a particular level

Summary

Overall, the GSE aligns well with the PISA FLA framework.

There is good coverage of suitable learning objectives that map well to both the sample items and the CEFR descriptors underpinning the assessment. While the alignment between the CEFR and the PISA FLA includes a narrow range of CEFR Can-Do statements, the alignment with the GSE broadens out the range to include other GSE Learning Objectives which would be useful in preparation for the task types.

The GSE provides a more nuanced and detailed lens through which to look at the PISA FLA framework, and could be used to provide learners with additional support, allowing them to become more confident in various aspects of the task types.

	Identifying cues and inferring: Can deduce the meaning of an unknown word for a concrete action or object, provided the surrounding text is very simple, and on a familiar everyday subject	23: Can guess the meaning of a word from an accompanying picture

Discrete gapped sentence

Cognitive processes	Lexical access, propositional meaning at sentence level
Reading type	Careful, local
Input text	Sentence with a word missing
Response format	Three words
Operation	Select the word that fills the gap to complete the sentence

CEFR level	CEFR Can-Do statements	Aligned GSE Learning Objectives
A1	Overall reading comprehension: Can understand very short, simple texts a single phrase at a time, picking up familiar names, words and basic phrases and rereading as required	23: Can identify familiar words in short, simple texts 27: Can understand basic phrases in short, simple texts
	Identifying cues and inferring: Can deduce the meaning of an unknown word for a concrete action or object, provided the surrounding text is very simple, and on a familiar everyday subject	23: Can guess the meaning of a word from an accompanying picture
A2	Overall reading comprehension: Can understand short, simple texts containing the highest frequency vocabulary, including a proportion of shared international vocabulary items	30: Can understand short, simple texts about everyday activities 32: Can get the gist of short, simple narratives, with visual support

Discrete multiple-choice

Cognitive processes	Propositional meaning at sentence level, inferencing
Reading type	Careful, local, global
Input text	Short text
Response format	Three sentences
Operation	Select the sentence that is true according to the text

CEFR level	CEFR Can-Do statements	Aligned GSE Learning Objectives
A1	Overall reading comprehension: Can understand very short, simple texts a single phrase at a time, picking up familiar names, words and basic phrases and rereading as required	23: Can identify familiar words in short, simple texts 27: Can understand basic phrases in short, simple texts 29: Can understand familiar phrases in a simple text
	Reading correspondence: Can understand short, simple messages on postcards	25: Can understand a few simple phrases related to familiar, everyday activities 27: Can understand simple descriptions of places
	Reading correspondence: Can understand short, simple messages sent via social media or email (e.g. proposing what to do, when and where to meet)	28: Can understand short, simple messages about when and where to meet
	Identifying cues and inferring: Can deduce the meaning of an unknown word for a concrete action or object, provided the surrounding text is very simple, and on a familiar everyday subject	23: Can guess the meaning of a word from an accompanying picture
A2	Overall reading comprehension: Can understand short, simple texts containing the highest frequency vocabulary, including a proportion of shared international vocabulary items	30: Can understand short, simple texts about everyday activities 33: Can get the gist of short, simple texts on familiar topics, if supported by pictures

Parts 1–5: Read aloud, Odd one out, Long turn – picture, Storytelling, Long turn

CEFR level	CEFR Can-Do statements	Aligned GSE Learning Objectives
A1	Overall phonological control: Pronunciation of a very limited repertoire of learned words and phrases can be understood with some effort by interlocutors used to dealing with speakers of the language group	26: Can read aloud short, familiar fixed expressions in a way that can be understood
	Overall phonological control: Can reproduce correctly a limited range of sounds as well as stress for simple, familiar words and phrases	25: Can accurately repeat clearly spoken words, phrases, and short sentences 29: Can read aloud short, familiar phrases with intelligible pronunciation
A2	Overall phonological control: Pronunciation is generally clear enough to be understood, but conversational partners will need to ask for repetition from time to time A strong influence from the other language(s) they speak on stress, rhythm and intonation may affect intelligibility, requiring collaboration from interlocutors Nevertheless, pronunciation of familiar words is clear	41: Can speak with appropriate intonation to correctly convey intended meaning 41: Can act out a simple role-play or dialogue with correct intonation
B1	Overall phonological control: Pronunciation is generally intelligible; intonation and stress at both utterance and word levels do not prevent understanding of the message Accent is usually influenced by the other language(s) they speak	None available
B2	Overall phonological control: Can generally use appropriate intonation, place stress correctly and articulate individual sounds clearly; accent tends to be influenced by the other language(s) they speak, but has little or no effect on intelligibility	65: Can use intonation to indicate various degrees of certainty during a discussion
C1	Overall phonological control: Can employ the full range of phonological features in the target language with sufficient control to ensure intelligibility throughout Can articulate virtually all the sounds of the target language; some features of accent(s) retained from other language(s) may be noticeable, but they do not affect intelligibility	None available
