When I did a homestay in Sydney, I studied at a language school for four weeks. On the first day of school, I caught a bus into town. I had a map to help me find the school, but I got off the bus one stop too soon. I couldn't find the school. I was worried that I would be late for class, so I asked a passer-by. He didn't know my school, but when I showed him the map, he said he knew the building. It was on his way, so he walked me there.
