Fun Fact

In 2004, Australia's first "dining in the dark" restaurant called "Blackout" opened in Melbourne. The idea is that if you can't see, then your other senses are heightened, so you can enjoy the food more. The idea came from a blind man who opened a similar restaurant in Zurich, Switzerland in 1999.

When locals in Melbourne say, "I'll meet you under the clocks," they mean at Flinders Street Railway Station under the row of clocks above the main entrance. This is a very popular meeting place.
