The campervan stopped suddenly. I rubbed my bleary eyes. I had fallen asleep during the long drive. There was an obstacle in the middle of the road. My dad was climbing out of the driver’s seat confidently, to investigate the long, thin object. Suddenly he jumped back with a cry. “A snake!” Instantly the venomous creature recoiled into the bushes.

Discuss Wind Runner's attitude towards the dog. Write your answer below. Underline evidence in the text to support your answer.

I was just adding a thin strand of sweetgrass when the old dog came leaping into the clearing. It stopped and shook, sending water flying into the air. The wet drops landed on my small fire, extinguishing it.

"Look what you've done!" I shouted. "You mangy dog!"

It was then that I recognised what I'd seen. The dog was dripping wet! "Where did you find water, Worthless One? Show me!" I commanded.

The dog barked once, then flopped down onto the grass. I decided to wait until it left again and then follow.
