

Let's talk

Suggesting

- What about moving to the country?
- We might as well sell our small city apartment.
- How about buying a nice big house in the middle of nowhere?
- Does it matter if we can't go out every week?
- It's high time we changed our lifestyle, don't you think?
- Given the choice, I'd rather say goodbye to the hectic, expensive city life; what about you?

Agreeing

- I see your point about wanting a calmer life.
- We think as one about charms of the countryside.
- I side with you on the prospect of a nice cottage.
- I'm on the same page as you, living in a city is expensive!
- Going out every week is a waste of money, I'm with you on this one.
- We see eye to eye about so many things.

Objecting

- On second thoughts, wouldn't we miss our friends?
- Suddenly I'm starting to see things in a different light.
- We might get really bored.
- After all, we love going out occasionally.
- I don't think I can come to terms with leaving the city for good.

Disagreeing

- I've made up my mind, I don't feel the same way as you about moving.
- I get it, it's a matter of opinion.
- But I doubt whether we could be happy there.
- I also take a different view on selling our apartment.
- I no longer see the advantages of doing it so suddenly.
- On the contrary, keeping it would be a sound investment.
- Wouldn't it be better to rent a cottage sometimes?

We'll just have to agree to disagree
