

Empower your teachers to confidently teach online

Your teachers are amazing in the classroom. Give them the tools to be amazing online, too, with Teaching for Impact, our professional development course designed to create skilled online instructors using our experience and knowledge from 18+ years in online education and more than one million students served.

Teaching for Impact

This series of self-paced training modules shares the strategies, methods, and know-how used by our expert online teachers and are aligned to the National Standards for Quality Online Teaching. Your teachers can move quickly through the “learning stage” to getting back to what they do best — teaching. As the school year progresses, they can always refer back to the content whenever they need.
