

StatCrunch – Updates

Welcome to the new StatCrunch. In this video, we will highlight a few areas where StatCrunch is easier to navigate and more accessible.

Everyday functions are now located in cards on the new homepage.

The data card contains all your data sets and shared data sets. Also on the data card, you can find helpful tools like interactive applets.

In the groups card—create, share, and manage group content and members. Invite students to join your group by simply sending them a link.

In the surveys card, find existing surveys to share, rename and copy.

Results and reports are combined in one card, making it easy to crunch the numbers, and then communicate results.

In help and training, StatCrunch videos are organized by frequency of use. If you prefer to use help documents, they are still available in the StatCrunch spreadsheet. Statistical functions remain in the same place at the top of the page.

The color scheme now meets accessibility standards. And you can now return to the StatCrunch homepage by hitting the My StatCrunch button.

We've redesigned the overall look and feel of StatCrunch so you can continue to collect, crunch, and communicate all in one place.
