

[Music] ^M00:00:06 ^CEMy professor once said we're broadcasters and we're the ones who provide people with the information and knowledge that they know from what's on camera and online so I want to be a part of educating others through that. The dream job I think right now is working with a major company and really building up their multimedia team or department and just really seeing what I could do to expand their reach and really better the experiences of the users and things like that. I definitely think the skills I need for that are time management, being able to be organized and on top of all the projects. The top skills I'd like to have before I graduate are definitely people skills because it's all about networking and getting to know more people and the more people you know, the more things you learn from them. ^M00:00:50 [Music]