A lot of companies are starting to go into that change in a positive way, which I'm absolutely loving, so that's kind of something I'm really interested in. And for qualities that will help me pursue this would definitely be learning about different cultures and kind of understanding what's misrepresented or what's not represented enough. The top skills that I would definitely want to have would be critical thinking, to expand my personal skills with people. Because with advertising and media studies, I'm going to have to come across so many different types of people. ^M00:00:48 [Music]
