

Endangered Tribes

Today, scientists believe that there are as many as six and a half billion people living on the earth. With so many people, it is hard to believe that there are tribes in danger of becoming lost forever.

These endangered tribes can be found all over the world, in Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe and the Americas. Most have survived for hundreds of thousands of years, often living alone in areas far from cities and other people.

Glossary:

endangered: in danger of being lost

tribe: a community of people who share similar cultures and beliefs

Some Endangered Tribes

Pygmy

Khanty

San

Aborigine

KEY:

● some endangered tribes